Eltham cinema progress

PROPOSALS for a new cinema and restaurant complex in Eltham Town Centre took a step forward when the royal borough's cabinet agreed to take forward plans to turn a key council-owned building into a cinema.

Leading cinema operators have already expressed an interest in the former Co-op department store, which was purchased by the council last year and it is hoped that the interest can be firmed up. The building in the middle of the High Street is the focus of proposals to stimulate the local economy and encourage more residents and visitors to the town during the evening.

The borough held discussions with community representatives about the best possible uses for the building before putting the cinema proposal forward.

Councillor Chris Roberts, Leader of the Royal Borough of Greenwich said: "We've looked in detail at the proposal and are very confident that a new cinema and restaurant at the heart of Eltham Town Centre will make a big difference to the town. It will be a great provision for local people and we know that cinemas attract people and attract spend in town centres, which can only be good news for Eltham. A leading cinema operator also attracts high street restaurants to an area so we really are confident that this move will give a real boost to Eltham and its residents. The next step is to go

Many don't want a new crossing

I AM replying to the 'Star Letter' of November 12, Ms Kepcen, which supported another river crossing. It will not be a surprise to realise that many people in Greenwich are rather more concerned about the building of a tunnel from Greenwich to Silvertown than its delay. She thinks it will enhance and regenerate our area, but our hugely-improved local public transport services will do that and would be used by many more people if they were just a bit cheaper. The environmental impact of the tunnel, or a bridge further downstream, will destroy the quality of life for those living along the planned route with a knock-on effect for those further afield. People travelling through the Blackwall Tunnel now only find delays during the rush hours. During the day and later in the evening it is plain sailing. Anyone who thinks another tunnel would offer the same ease of movement is going to be greatly disappointed. All research shows that any new road soon reaches its capacity because people make new journeys - just because they can! We cannot afford to put our most vulnerable citizens (the very young and elderly) at risk because folk want the convenience of sitting in their cars. We will be the poor relation in London if we allow our green and pleasant borough to be polluted any further.

Jill Austen
Charlton

● Transport for London is progressing plans for new river crossings in South East London. Over the next few months the Mayor of London will carry out environmental and economic impact assessments which will provide a further opportunity for people to comment. The Royal Borough supports the principle of more river crossings in this part of London. It believes they are badly needed to ease traffic problems and to unlock the full economic potential of the area, as extra transport links are strongly supported by local businesses.

Untidy hospital grass resolved

A FEW weeks ago you had a letter complaining about the state of the grass outside Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Stadium Road. I was up there last Monday and it has all been cleared up quite nicely. So it does show that writing to you, even though you said the ground belongs to the hospital trust, can get the problem resolved as someone's sorted it. It's quite good to walk along the pavement now when you go to the hospital as before you had to walk in the road, so well done for publishing the letter.

Bringing a smile to you

A CHOIR from the New Wine Church set the tone for Christmas at their annual lights switch-on.

Conducted by Lawrence Johnson, they entertained a crowd of more than 100 people at the annual event on Friday November 15.

It was held outside the old Art Deco cinema on John Wilson Street, Woolwich, where the church has been based since 2000.

They performed in front of a banner which read 'This year, we're doing it again! We're bringing a smile.'

Pieter van der Merwe, deputy lieutenant of the Royal Borough of Greenwich, performed the switch-on with the church's pastor, Michael Olawore.

The church will be handing out Christmas hampers to the borough's less privileged, via a voucher system, on Monday December 23, from 8am.

The hampers contain everything needed for a Christmas meal, including a 9.5kg turkey. They are sponsored by members of the church who will be handing them out for the 13th year running.

through the planning process with these proposals."

The cinema proposal is part of a masterplan for Eltham Town Centre which aims to promote economic growth by developing key sites and making improvements to the area.

The council has four masterplan sites which focus on regenerating key sites in the borough: Eltham Town Centre, Charlton Riverside, Greenwich Peninsula and Woolwich Town Centre. The areas have been identified as those which can best promote growth and prosperity across the borough as a whole.

The master plans all feed into the borough's 'Growth Strategy', an overall vision for growth, regeneration and employment. It also sets out the council's aim of creating a strong and robust local economy, delivering more affordable housing, providing training and employment opportunities for residents and to further boost the borough's reputation as a leading destination by protecting and enhancing its rich mix of cultural, historical and leisure facilities and attractions.

TV licence advice for the elderly

OLDER residents are being reminded of the ways they can find help if they are struggling to pay their TV licence. The TV licensing community relations team is available to answer questions on 0300 790 6115 or visit their website at www.tvlicensing.co.uk. A colour TV licence costs £145.50 and a black and white one £49.00. It can be paid for annually, quarterly, monthly, fortnightly or weekly, through several methods, including direct debit, online or via a payment card. Concessions are available for the blind and visually impaired and the over 75s get a free licence.

Free tickets to over-60s festive disco

ACTIVE seniors are invited to kick off the festive season at a Jingle Bell Rock disco next week.

There are still free tickets to the dance off for over-60s in Woolwich Town Hall from 2-4pm next Wednesday (December 4). The event will feature a range of dance favourites – and some surprises – as well as karaoke and mince pies.

CLR John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for adults and older people, said: "The level of enthusiasm for our Silver

Sunday programme showed how much energy older people have for taking part in activities in their local community.

"The Jingle Bell disco will be a great way to kick off the festive season and I am really looking forward to it."

Tickets are free but must be booked in advance on 020 8921 3492 or by emailing rajinder.phull@royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Trust takes CARE of diversity

SIGNING THE DEAL: Dr Michael Seeraj, Cllr Chris Roberts, the council leader, and Addicks chairman Michael Slater

A PIONEERING race equality project that uses sports and the arts to create community cohesion is to be managed by the Charlton Athletic Community Trust.

Established more than 20 years ago, the Charlton Athletic race equality partnership (CARE) uses a diverse range of multi-sports and interactive arts-based programmes to build links within communities.

Since being set up, it has been led by the royal borough and Charlton Athletic Football Club.

The switch will create new opportunities for fundraising and enable stronger links to be created with other aspects of the trust's work, including the youth services that it runs on behalf of the borough.

The project will be managed by an equality and diversity division within the trust, led by Dr Michael Seeraj.

The borough will retain close involvement, through a joint advisory committee.

When Charlton Athletic hosted Leeds United, Dr Seeraj was joined on the pitch at half-time by Cllr Chris Roberts, leader of the royal borough, and Addicks chairman Michael Slater, to sign a pledge to support the work of the CARE Partnership.

Cllr Roberts said: "The work done by the CARE Partnership over more than 20 years has been born out of a strong commitment shared by the council and the football club to bring the values of community and respect into the club and into the borough.

"The CARE Partnership marked the genesis of Charlton as a community-focused club like no other, helping inspire similar work by clubs across the country."

"The royal borough welcomes the involvement of the Community Trust in taking forward this work, and we remain as committed as ever to this important work."

The CARE Partnership's innovative sports and arts programme creates informal ways for interaction and communication between groups and individuals who might not otherwise have normally associated with each other, helping to build positive relationships and a sense of community.

Residents warned of 'burglary sticker' scam

CRIME prevention officers are investigating a new burglary scam after dozens of calls from the public.

It centres on door stickers giving details for a locksmith which have been posted on homes in Ridgebrook Road, Eltham, and other areas.

The telephone number given doesn't connect, giving rise to concerns that the stickers are a front for a sophisticated scam in which burglars are targeting homes which they believe are easy to break into.

The stickers, printed with the words 24 hour locksmith and the number 020 3582 8175, have been linked to one break-in in Wandsworth and local crime prevention officers have been warning residents about similar incidents in the royal borough through safer neighbourhood teams.

A Met spokesman said: "We have received a number of calls reporting such stickers and are working to establish exactly where the stickers have been found and if they are linked to any burglaries. "At this stage we are only aware of one burglary, in Wandsworth, that has taken place at a property that had a sticker.

"However, we cannot confirm the property was burgled because it had a sticker.

"We would urge residents to be vigilant and report any sightings of stickers to their safer neighbourhood team. Contact details can be found at www.met.police.uk."

Officers have also issued crime prevention tips as part of Operation Bumblebee, an annual campaign to alert people to the risks of burglary during the darker nights. Tips are available at www.metbumblebee.org

Cllr Maureen O Mara, the royal borough's cabinet member for environment and community safety, said: "At this time of year, as the dark evenings draw in and we start buying Christmas presents, it's particularly important to take care of our home security.

"We urge residents to implement a range of crime prevention measures to deter burglars at all levels."

New life for former old people's home

by Dick Townsend-Smith

WORK is under way to pull down a former old people's home on Woolwich Common and replace it with a new development of 37 flats for people aged over 60.

Mabel Polley House was named after a local councillor who served between 1945 and 1968. She was Mayor of Woolwich in 1962-63.

It was built as a residential care home for the elderly in 1978. It has been empty for several years.

The scheme is part of the council's housing plans for older people, which include upgrading sheltered schemes and developing new 'senior living' homes that provide modern, purpose-built accommodation.

Mabel Polley House is attached to two other council blocks, Watling House and Wordsworth House. So the work has to be done as delicately as possible to avoid disturbing the neighbours.

The residents at which the new accommodation will be aimed are those moving from council-owned sheltered blocks or the three Woolwich estates as well as tenants wishing to downsize from currently under-occupied homes.

The 37 one and two-bedroom flats due to be built are for able-bodied people, but can be adapted if residents become disabled in the future.

Building work is due to finish in the spring 2015.

Cllr Steve Offord, the council's cabinet member for housing, said: "This new scheme will help provide attractive, modern homes for older people, and give some the opportunity to move out of larger council properties, meaning they will save on heating and fuel costs."

Huge turn out for lights up

ELTHAM started the royal borough's Christmas celebrations with a nighttime carnival last Thursday. And shoppers took advantage of a range of special discounts on offer from local traders and later opening hours. It was all part of the much-loved Eltham Lights Up celebrations - the first of three festive launch events in the royal borough. Greenwich Lights Up is due to start at 4pm tomorrow (November 27) with a lantern parade from Cutty Sark Gardens while Woolwich celebrates the Christmas Countdown, a day of entertainment with lantern parade and fireworks on Saturday December 7.

The events have been organised by the royal borough to attract people to the town centres and to encourage residents to shop local for Christmas.

Traders are running special offers and discounts to tempt customers and around 100 shops and businesses are offering extra discounts to the 50,000 people with a Greenwich Card.

Retailers are also backing a national week-long campaign urging people to 'shop local', next week and especially on Saturday December 7, which has been designated Small Business Saturday.

- The council is enquiring into how 13 people were injured by falling debris from fireworks set off by a contractor at the event. The Council would like to apologise to anyone who was affected by the incident. If you have any comments or concerns please email bob.hills@royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Borough 'perfect' for ex-banker's new venture

by Ian Lamont

JAMES Yeomans might still be working the long hours he put in while an investment banker, but he has ditched the suit to run his own business.

He and his girlfriend Emma Wheatley moved to the borough earlier this year and decided the Royal Arsenal was the perfect place to set up a brewery.

Often starting at 8am and finishing past 9pm, the hours are still long, but the Hop Stuff Brewery is now in full flow.

Two beers are on sale in pubs and bottles. A third will be launched at the music and mince pies evening, the latest event at the Greenwich Heritage Centre tomorrow (Wednesday, November 27). A fourth, just bottled, should be ready for Christmas.

James said: "We moved here in March and fell in love with it.

"We're really excited and impressed with the place. It's a very beautiful part of Greenwich and of London that a lot of people wouldn't know about.

"It looks like there are many positive signs and seedings of regeneration at the Royal Arsenal. The area has had its ups and downs but it's definitely on the up."

James had long held an ambition to brew. "Finally things stacked up and I decided to go for it," he said. "The dream has always been there, as it is for millions of people around the UK who want to stop work and do something on their own.

"But it's taking that leap of faith from safe employment."

He was able to pursue that dream through crowd funding, a relatively new social phenomenon which allows small investors to take a stake in new ventures.

It took little more than a month for James and Emma to raise just over their £50,000 target - the third brewery to be funded through crowd funding.

While he made using crowd funding look easy, he says there was a lot of hard work before going public to ask for money.

"We'd done our homework and done a lot of canvassing," James said. "We made sure we had a clear idea of what we wanted to do, which some groups who try to crowd fund don't.

"We made sure we were fully prepared and done a good job on our finances.

"We were incredibly surprised at the amount of support, particularly locally."

Several pubs have agreed to take the ales, including the Dial Arch, where James pulled the first pints of his two beers, Pale Ale and Fusilier, recently.

The third, Renegade IPA, will be launched at the heritage centre while the fourth is Gunners Porter, a stronger winter warmer which James describes as the "Christmas finishing beer - the one that really finishes the day off nicely when everybody falls asleep during the afternoon film."

They have also received a licence to sell from their brewery, even if the venue is not open to visitors just yet.

Often working "from 7am to midnight" in investment banking, James now has an average 8am to 9pm day, on one day filling 1,000 bottles with a machine that only holds four at a time. The brewery produces about 3,000 litres of beer a week from a 10-barrel brewing system.

Plus then there is gaining feedback and he summed up the all-hours life of a small business by saying: "When we launched at the Dial Arch, I'd been drinking from about 7pm. Then one of our investors came in at about 11pm and I had to be all serious again."

Carers' chance to discover rights

CARERS are invited to an event marking national Carers' Rights Day on Friday (November 29). They will be able to find out more about support services, including how to apply for a personal payment of between £50 and £500 to help them in their caring role. The drop-in event is at Charlton House from 11am to 4pm. It is organised by the royal borough and Greenwich Carers' Centre and is open to all who provide support and care to someone who has a long-term illness, disability or age-related frailty.

It's hosted by the Mary Dolly Foundation, a charity which supports elderly citizens to access services as well as families and children. Borough plan for

by Dick Townsend-Smith

KIDBROOKE could get a new skills centre for about 1,000 trainees who want to work in the construction industry.

It will give them entry level skills enabling them to gain basic qualifications and permits to work on construction sites and find long-term jobs.

Councillors agreed the plans when the royal borough's cabinet met last week (Wednesday, November 20).

If formal planning permission is approved, the skills centre will become the fourth to be opened in the royal borough, following the Hadlow College equestrian and horticultural centre, the Ravensbourne digital college on the Greenwich Peninsula, and the hospitality centre at Charlton Athletic's ground.

The proposal for the £500,000 centre on council-owned land would see it run by a highly-rated training agency, who will lease the site at a peppercorn rent.

There are also plans in the pipeline to build a second craft centre in either Woolwich or Charlton later.

This will offer construction craft skills such as carpentry, plumbing, painting and decorating and plastering.

It will also provide work experience, opening doors to jobs and apprenticeships.

All the royal borough's skills centres are run by providers who are leaders in their field, with strong links to employers and who attract funding from sources such as the skills funding agency and the national apprenticeship service.

The new centre will be branded the Royal Borough of Greenwich Construction Skills Centre, and will have an outdoor area for practical training.

It would be located in Kidbrooke Village, next to Holy Family School off Tudway Road. The council wants to see a minimum of 960 trainees a year joining entry level courses of a week long.

It is planned that it will run one and two-day courses for a minimum of 240 trainees a year. The aim is to get about 1,400 people trained and supported at the skills centre every year.

Providing planning requirements are met, building work will start on the site in February next year, ready for the centre to open in April. Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member for regeneration, said: "This is an important project for the royal borough, as part of an exciting regeneration programme of growth.

"It will allow us to get people into training, earning qualifications, and making them the sort of recruits that employers want to take on.

"The construction industry is set for rapid expansion, with the growing need for new homes and other buildings such as schools and commercial properties.

"We want to help local people make the most of the opportunities that will be available."

Restaurant pays out £12,700 for licensing breaches

TWO breaches of the Licensing Act have cost the High Chaparral restaurant managers £12,700.

The royal borough prosecuted staff at the Greenwich Church Street outlet after borough licensing officers posed as customers and determined that licensing rules were not being followed.

At a two-day trial at Bromley Magistrates Court on November 11 and 12 premises licence holder Cuneyt Ozborme and designated premises supervisor Yavuz Ozborme both pleaded not guilty to charges of allowing late entry and selling alcohol where not accompanied by a main meal.

However, magistrates determined that the defendants were guilty of both offences.

The defendants were each fined £1,500 for allowing late entry and £1,500 for selling alcohol where not accompanied by a main meal - £6,000 in total.

Each of them also had to pay an additional victim surcharge of £300, and costs of £3,054.

The licensing breaches therefore cost them £12,708 in total.

The offences occurred on April 28, 2012 and September 21 and 22, 2012 when licensing officers from the royal borough were investigating allegations of a breach of conditions by the management and posed as customers.

Cllr Maureen O'Mara, the borough's cabinet member for community safety and environment, said: "The vast majority of the royal borough's restaurants comply with our licensing laws.

"However, the case of High Chaparral in Greenwich shows that the royal borough acts decisively to bring businesses that fail to comply into line.

"Our town centres are exciting and vibrant places to socialise in and we will not tolerate irresponsible behaviour by businesses that could harm the enjoyment of members of the public."

HIV tests offered as part of sexual health week

SOUTH East London has some of the highest HIV infection rates in the UK - but a quarter of people with HIV are not aware they are affected.

The news comes as health workers prepare for World Aids Day on Sunday December 1, followed the next day by the start of Greenwich Sexual Health Week.

Professionals from the Oxleas NHS Healthcare Trust will be promoting HIV prevention and sexual health during the week.

And before that, a specialist team from Oxleas will be at the Woolwich Centre in Wellington Street on Friday November 29 to encourage HIV testing.

The Metro Centre in Greenwich

High Road, which serves gay, lesbian and bisexual people, will be handing out World Aids Day red ribbons at train stations and promoting HIV testing.

Metro's Outreach team will also be working with schools and colleges throughout the week

A new online home testing programme for sexually transmitted infections, including HIV, will be promoted throughout the week. Rapid at-point-of-care HIV tests, with results available in one minute, will be made available free of charge via trained professionals including GPs.

The Greenwich Sexual Health free condom scheme will also be publicised throughout the week, along with the new STI and HIV testing clinic for Africans based at Clover Health Centre in Woolwich New Road.

Latest figures show that and African communities and men who have sex with men continue to be the most 'at risk' groups.

In recent years, treatment for HIV has improved significantly, but there is still no cure.

People infected with HIV who are on treatment can live long, healthy lives, but early diagnosis is critical.

World AIDS Day is held on December 1 each year and gives people worldwide the chance to unite in the fight against HIV, support people living with the disease, and commemorate those who have died.

Around 100,000 people in the UK are now living with HIV.

AS the nights draw in and temperatures fall Dan Stephens learns more about the council's preparations for winter and some useful tips on what residents can do to keep safe and on the move

Snow pro

THE ROYAL borough is all set to deal with falling temperatures if they give way to frost, ice and snow.

Its winter weather plan includes a range of measures to help residents stay mobile and safe during the toughest conditions.

The council's road gritting service is on standby from October to March and ready to keep the borough's footways and carriageways in a safe and passable condition during periods of severe weather. This year the council has stockpiled more than 2,000 tonnes of grit ready to tackle icy conditions. Trained gritting teams are at the ready and the weather is monitored daily so they can be well prepared.

A fleet of six gritter trucks and a team of hundreds ready to trawl the borough gritting roads and thoroughfares should freezing weather set in. The new computerised vehicles have tracking systems and high tech capabilities for adjusting the spread the salt according to varying conditions.

The team can pre-salt roads, where rock salt is used to prevent ice from forming; or post-salt, where rock salt is used to melt ice and snow that has already formed; as well as shovelling snow.

Royal borough roads and footways are gritted on a priority basis with main roads, bus routes, emergency service depots, major junctions and transport hubs gritted first. The council will also try to grit or clear slopes and stairways in communal areas on council estates where possible.

The council is encouraging residents to help their neighbours especially the elderly. If residents are concerned about the effects of winter, or are worried about a relative or an elderly neighbour, they can contact the royal borough's Stay Warm Stay Safe freephone customer services number on 0800 779 7033.

You can also do your bit by following a few simple tips:

- Start early, it will be much easier to remove fresh, loose snow. However it's not advisable to use hot water as it often replaces the snow with black ice.
- Be a good neighbour and check that elderly and vulnerable people you know are ok in the cold weather, and as many will not be able to clear snow and ice please help when you can.
- Think about where you are putting your shovelled snow and take care that it does not block other people's paths or drains.
- Adding salt to an area that you are clearing will help prevent ice forming. Table or dishwasher salt will work fine.
- Allow the sun to melt ice by removing the top layer of snow in a driveway or path.

Residents are also encouraged to take a common sense approach to helping clear paths and pavements outside their front doors, and those of their neighbours.

Cllr Denise Hyland, the royal borough's cabinet member with responsibility for highways, said: "The royal borough is well prepared for the possibility of extreme weather over the winter and we are encouraging residents to be proactive in preparing for cold spells over the next few months. Please don't be put off clearing paths because of any legal implications. Use common sense and your actions will contribute to a safer and more accessible neighbourhood. "We need our residents to prepare for the cold weather and work with us to keep the borough moving and ticking over. You can make a big difference by doing small things like brushing away snow near your home and checking in on elderly neighbours."

HOST FOR THE NIGHT: Up the Creek favourite Paul Chowdhry comperes Thursday's comedy final

12 face the crowd for comedy final

TWELVE up and coming comedians battle it out on stage in the grand finals of a comedy competition this week.

The finals of Up the Creek's One to Watch competition is on Thursday (November 28) and promises to be one of the biggest nights in new comedy.

After months of heats and hundreds of entries, the 12 finalists will each have five minutes on stage to show what they've got.

The comics include performers who've been working the circuit for two to three years to newcomers who are still developing their own styles.

And they'll have their work cut out with a judging panel made up of industry experts including Rebecca Papworth (BBC Comedy), James Longman (series producer on Never Mind the Buzzcocks) and Alan Carr (Chatty Man) plus David Geli and Pollyanna McGirr from Up the Creek management team.

"We've got a huge range of excellent comic talent on the bill! This is our most diverse line up yet and we've got about half men and half women. We can't wait for the Grand Final," said Pollyanna.

Tickets are £4 and doors open at 7.30pm with the show at 8.15pm

AN actor's life is a varied one - in roles, travel and the instability of work.

But there is one venue that Andrew Pollard loves so much that he returned to it for the past eight years - and that is Greenwich Theatre.

Having first written the theatre's panto in 2005, he is now starring as the pantomime dame at Greenwich for the eighth year running.

Brought up in Yorkshire, he has ended up in Greenwich for three months of each year through Hilary Strong, who used to run the theatre, having met her in Bath where he was a member of a company for seven years.

"The Greenwich Theatre audience have grown along with us," said Pollard, who will be playing Fruity Fifi in this year's production, Puss in Boots.

"It's like the show seems to belong to the community and I feel a really big sense of pride," he said. "We're part of people's Christmas."

While he writes for other theatres throughout the year - including Stoke on Trent - and has performed in such productions as Around the World in 80 Days - returning to Greenwich gives him the chance to "create the whole thing".

It gives him as an actor three months' work and this year he has chosen to revive a storyline which is not often performed.

"It's not done very much anymore and there was talk about doing Jack and the Beanstalk this year, which we've done before," admits Pollard.

"But I felt we'd done it too recently and they've allowed me to do this - it's great to bring a panto back.

"Haringey are also doing Puss in Boots and they have never done it before - and we're the only two theatres in the country doing it," he said proudly.

And he promises, just like many pantos, that there will be humour for all the family.

"It's a bit like Shrek in that the film is like a panto - it works on two levels,

A dame good thing

Ian Lamont talks to Andrew Pollard about Greenwich Theatre's annual pantomime

it has comedy for children and other stuff in it for adults," he said.

While the production deliberately does not pull in a star name performer, it nonetheless has a fully professional cast list, including some familiar names for Greenwich audiences.

Paul Critoph has also become a staple of the theatre's annual production and this year he will play King Louis Croissant. Luke Striffler, who plays Sam, has just finished a national tour of Hairspray. Alim Jayda - Cornelius Cat (Puss) - has been performing in the Watford Palace Theatre.

The 500-strong audiences will be in for a comic treat from Pollard's dame.

"It's not about dressing up in women's clothes, it's about being a clown," he said. "I've always seen myself as being a clown and when you strip away the wigs it's clown make-up underneath."

Tickets are priced from £18 to £27. All children's tickets are half price.

ROYAL BOROUGH OF GREENWICH

ROAD TRAFFIC REGULATION ACT 1984 AND HIGHWAYS ACT 1980

The Greenwich (20 MPH Zone) (No. ) Traffic Order 201

1. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council of the Royal Borough of Greenwich (hereinafter referred to as "the Council") proposes to make the above-mentioned Order under section 84 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984.
2. The general effect of the Order would be to impose a 20 miles per hour speed limit on motor vehicles in the roads specified in Schedule 1 to this Notice (which lie broadly within the area bounded by Woolwich Road, Charlton Church Lane, Charlton Road and the A102).
3. FURTHER NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Council proposes, under section 90A of the Highways Act 1980, to:
 - (a) construct road humps at the locations specified in Schedule 2 to this Notice. Each road hump would be an elevated section of carriageway, between 75 and 100 millimetres higher at its highest point than the surrounding carriageway, extending across the full width of the carriageway and measuring approximately 3.7 metres in length, including the gradients;
 - (b) construct the type of road humps known as "speed cushions" in ones or twos across the width of the carriageway at the locations specified in Schedule 3 to this Notice. Each speed cushion would be an elevated section of carriageway with a flat top, between 75 and 100 millimetres higher at its highest point than the surrounding carriageway and measuring approximately 3 metres in length and 1.6 metres in width, including the gradients; and
 - (c) remove existing road humps in Victoria Way (just north of Frank Burton Close and south of Rathmore Road).
4. A copy of the proposed Order and other documents, including a map, giving more detailed particulars of the Order, road humps and speed cushions is available for inspection during normal office hours until the end of six weeks from the date on which the Order is made or, as the case may be, the Council decides not to make the Order, at the Directorate of Regeneration, Enterprise and Skills, Strategic Transportation, Royal Borough of Greenwich, The Woolwich Centre, 35 Wellington Street, SE18 6HQ.
5. Further information may be obtained by telephoning Strategic Transportation on 020 8921 6024.
6. Any person who wishes to object to or make other representations about the proposed Order or road humps should send a statement in writing, specifying the grounds on which any objection is made, to the Royal Borough of Greenwich, PO Box 485, Kemp House, 152-160 City Road, London, EC1V 2NX (quoting reference PCL/TMO/JB/1461), to arrive by 17th December 2013.
7. Persons objecting to the proposed Order should be aware that in view of the Local Government (Access to Information) Act 1985, this Council would be legally obliged to make any comments received in response to this notice, open to public inspection.

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.

Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

Sinha made to work hard for third title in a row

SABRINA Sinha won individual gold for the third year running at the London Youth Games cross country event - but it was her tightest victory yet.

As expected, the Royal Borough of Greenwich runner's closest rival for the under-15 title was Katy-Ann McDonald, from Wandsworth.

The pair had a tight finish, with Sabrina out-sprinting her rival in the closing stages to win by just two seconds, leaving the chasing pack on Parliament Hill a further 24 seconds behind.

Cambridge Harrier Sabrina, 14, finished the muddy and hilly 2km course in seven minutes 11 seconds.

Sabrina, supported by Greenwich Starting Blocks, won the under-13 event two years ago and the under-15 title last year.

She said of her hat-trick: "It's amazing to win again. I started off well but Katy-Ann soon caught up. I had to sprint to the finish which I didn't like. Getting my third win here and being the favourite is really scary because I've got people like Katy-Ann and everyone else I competed against and they're all really good."

"I know the competition was high today, so I knew I had to go out and give it my all for the whole race. It was definitely going to be a close finish which got me really worried but I'm really happy and proud to win for my borough."

"Parliament Hill is a really difficult course. I don't think there is a part where there isn't a hill or muddy ditch - no part of the course can be called easy. It's a tough course and to come and win it is amazing. It shows how tough you are and gives you a bit of confidence for the rest of the season."

In the team event for the under-15 age-group, Greenwich finished third from 32 teams. Her team-mates Hannah Tompkins finished 17th and Zoe Tompkins 21st. Wandsworth were second and Bromley first.

Across age-groups from under 13s to under 17s, about 1200 competitors took part.

Desdevises completing the haul with a gold and a silver.

Jamie Wood, the gym manager, is so impressed with the progress they have made that he has decided to join in.

"Austin led by example, winning a gold and a title belt," said Jamie.

"They train five or six times a week - every day if they can."

"This is a fantastic achievement because some of them have only been doing it for three or four months."

"It's a fantastic sport. It's like a human game of chess. It is very technical."

"It's fantastic for fitness and some of the guys have lost so much weight through regular training."

"Austin is over the moon with everyone's progress and their dedication. All the students are a credit to him - and he's such a patient and understanding coach."

"They knew the competition was going to be hard. NAGA has a reputation for setting a high standard. This was the biggest competition they run outside America."

Classes at the gym, which caters for several types of martial arts, have been run for about two years. The next target for the 20-strong group of regulars is January's British Championships. To take part, contact the gym on 07557 7749557.
